

Glorification of Śrī Gurudeva

Often we are asked by people who enter into Hinduism by reading the Bhagavad Gītā where all the Vaiṣṇavas' worship of the Guru is mentioned. Though there is only one verse in the Gītā that hints at it there are many many verses in other scriptures. Here is a list, starting with:

The Guru in Śrīmad Bhāgavata :

yair idṛṣī bhagavato gatir ātma-vāda ekāntato nigamibhiḥ pratipāditā naḥ tuṣyantv adabhra-karuṇāḥ sva-kṛtena nityam ko nāma tat pratikaroti vinoda-pātram

(Śrīmad Bhāgavata 4.22.47)

Mahārāja Pṛthu told Sanatkumāra: „May you – who are well versed in the Vedas and have in your profuse compassion precisely explained to us, in the course of your dissertation on the Supreme Lord, the true nature of God as depicted above – may you ever be pleased with your own acts (of delivering the afflicted). What else can be a reward for you but handfuls of water?”

The importance of the Guru confirmed in the scriptures.

Śrīdhara Svāmī comments: saty api svatve sarvasvenāpi na guroḥ pratyupakartum śakyam ity āha—yair iti – „Even by offering everything you have you cannot repay the Guru.” yad vā, vinoda-pātram upahāsāspadam. pratyupakāre pravṛttau janānām upahāsāspadam bhaved ity arthaḥ „Other than the ‘handfuls of water’ interpretation one can read the verse thus: instead of vinā uda-pātra (without handfuls of water) one can also read vinoda-pātram, or ‘object of ridicule’. In other words, anyone who says that there is any way to repay the Guru is a ridiculous person.”

Śrī Viśvanātha Cakravartīpāda’s Sārārtha Darśinī-comment on Śrīmad Bhāgavata 4.28.34 —

sutāt hitveti pativratā patyur iva guroḥ sevāyām pravṛttaḥ śiṣyaḥ śravaṇa kīrtanādīnyapi bhogān tad utthāna premānandān api grhān tad ucita vivikta sthalaḥ api naivāpekṣate. śrī guru sevayaiva sukhena sarva sādhyā siddhyartham ityupadeśa vyañjitaḥ.....guru sevāyā eva vedena sarvādhikasyoktatvā

“A devoted and chaste wife, while absorbed in the service of her husband, does not care even for her son. Similarly, a disciple deeply absorbed in the service of the Guru does not even depend on hearing and chanting, knowing that by guru-sevā he can easily attain complete perfection in devotion. Just as a devoted wife does not want any sense enjoyment and home comfort, a disciple completely absorbed in guru-sevā does not seek even premānanda arising out of hearing and chanting nor even seek secluded places suitable to his bhajana. The Vedas say that service to the Guru is the greatest.”

Viśvanātha Cakravartī’s comment on Śrīmad Bhāgavata 4.28.50 –

Viśvanātha Cakravarti's comment on Śrīmad Bhāgavata 4.28.51:

Viśvanātha Cakravartīpāda comments: guroḥ śuśrūṣayā śnapana saṁvāhanādikayā – “The word śuśrūṣā means bathing and massaging the Guru (practical services)”.

Śrī Nārada told King Yudhiṣṭhira: "To give up lust one must give up one's determination to enjoy, to give up anger one must give up lust and to give up greed one must see the evil of money. Fear can be given up by considering the truth, lamentation and illusion can be given up by considering what is material and what is spiritual (rational thinking), pride can be given up by serving a great soul and obstacles in yoga-practise (which serves the purpose of fixing the mind) can be overcome by perfecting a vow of silence. Violence is conquered by giving up endeavours for sense-gratification, suffering caused by other living entities can be mitigated by developing the quality of compassion, suffering caused by the elements can be mitigated by entering into samādhi and suffering caused by the own body and mind can be mitigated by practising the eight-fold path of mystic yoga (aṣṭāṅga-yoga). When the mode of goodness increases sleep is conquered, along with the modes of passion and darkness, and by controlling the senses the mode of goodness is transcended. But all these vices and obstacles together can be conquered simply by devotion to the Guru."

Śrī Viśvanātha Cakravartīpāda comments on this verse –

“One overcomes all obstacles quickly and easily by bhakti to the Guru. This is like taking just one principal medicine which cures all other diseases.”

« Whoever has the foolish notion that the Guru, the bestower of the lamp of divine knowledge, who is God Himself, is a mere mortal, has all his learning lost, just as an elephant throws dust all over himself after bathing. »

Śrī Viśvanātha Cakravartīpāda comments on this verse –

sākṣād bhagavatīti bhagavad amśa-buddhir api gurau na kāryeti bhāvaḥ. yad vā upāsyē bhagavatyeva sākṣād vidyamāne martyā'sad dhīḥ martya iti durbuddhis tasya śrutam bhagavan mantrādikaṁ śāstrādikaṁ śravaṇa mananādikaṁ ca vyartham ityarthāḥ

« Sākṣād Bhagavan means one should not even see the Guru as a particle of God, but as God Himself. It is foolish if one sees God, who is directly present (in the form of the Guru) as a mortal. If a fool thinks the Guru is an ordinary mortal not only his learning, but also his practise of his mantra, his hearing and his meditation on the Lord are all in vain. »

eṣa vai bhagavān sākṣāt pradhāna-puruṣeśvaraḥ yogeśvarair vimṛgyāṅghrir loko yaṁ manyate naram

(Śrīmad Bhāgavata 7.15.27)

“He whose lotus-feet are sought by the greatest masters of Yoga, who is the Lord of material nature and all living beings has appeared in the form of Gurudeva, whom the people mistake for an ordinary human being.”

Why is Gurudeva mentioned in the translation and not in the verse? Because the ācāryas explain the verse as such. Śrīla Jīva Gosvāmī explains: eṣa śrī-kṛṣṇa-lakṣaṇo'pi. tataḥ prākṛta-dṛṣṭir na bhagavat-tattva-grahaṇe pramāṇam iti bhāvaḥ. “This is also the symptom of Śrī Kṛṣṇa (so if it is not about Kṛṣṇa it is about Guru, who was discussed in the preceding 5 verses). It shows that a mundane view can never help establish the truth about God.”

Śrīla Viśvanātha Cakravartī confirms this more elaborately in his own comment:

The importance of the Guru confirmed in the scriptures.

nanu guroḥ piṭṛ putrādayaḥ prativeśinaś ca taṁ naram eva manyante katham eka evāyaṁ śiṣyas taṁ parameśvaram manyante? ata āha – eṣa iti bhagavān yadunandano raghunandano vā vai niścitam eva pradhāna puruṣayor īśvaraḥ yaṁ lokas tad avatāra kālotpanno janaḥ naram manyate tena kiṁ sa naro bhavati? api tu parameśvara evetyevaṁ guror apīti bhāvaḥ

“If his parents, children and neighbors consider the Guru to be a human being then how can one disciple consider him to be the supreme controller (parameśvara)? To this it is said: When the master of the material nature and the living beings descends as Yadunandana (Kṛṣṇa) or Raghunandana (Rāma) and people who meet Him while He is down here on earth, take Him to be a human being, does that mean that He is? He is certainly the supreme controller, and so is the Guru.”

Kṛṣṇa says: “I am not satisfied with gṛhastha dharma, a birth as a brahmin, brahmacārī dharma, tapasya (living in the forest) or sannyāsa dharma as I am with service rendered to the Guru who bestows divine knowledge.”

Śrī Sanātana and Jīva Gosvāmī comment on 10.80.35: śrī guru sevā māhātmyam uktvā loka-śikṣārtham “To teach the people the service of the Guru is described here.”

following the teacher obediently.”

With all the talk that you can adopt as many Gurus as you want, with apparent support from the 11th canto, it is interesting to see in the ācāryas' commentaries that a Vaiṣṇava still accepts only one personal Guru and remains loyal to him:

*labdhvānugraha ācāryāt tena sandarśitāgamaḥ
mahā-puruṣam abhyarcen mūrtyābhimatayātmanaḥ*

(Śrīmad Bhāgavata 11.3.48)

“Having attained the mercy of the ācārya and having been shown the scriptures by him one should worship the Supreme Lord in the image of his choice.”

Śrīla Jīva Gosvāmī comments: anugraho mantra-dikṣā-rūpaḥ. asyaikatvam ekavacanatvena bodhyate “The word ācārya is in singular case. The mercy is bestowed in the form of initiation.”

*ātmano gurur ātmaiva puruṣasya viśeṣataḥ

(Śrīmad Bhāgavata 11.7.20)

“The Supreme Self is the guide of the individual self, especially in the case of man, inasmuch as by sense perception and assumption he can accomplish his own welfare.”

Though it appears here that one can just rely on the paramātmā without surrendering to a personal Guru, Śrīla Jīva Gosvāmī adds in his Krama-sandarbha commentary on this verse: gurv-anusaraṇe pravartaka ity arthaḥ “This means it should prompt one to seek and follow a single, personal Guru”

« Actually one should surely accept one single qualified Guru and perfect one's knowledge through him. Should one then inquire from teachers who have differing opinions? Why is it then recommended that one learn from many so-called spiritual masters appearing in the forms of ordinary material objects? The Avadhūta replies to this that even if one receives steady and profuse knowledge from a single, major Guru, it cannot be accomplished by hearing from him alone. That is made clear in the second half of the verse – “though brahman is unique, it is sung of by the seers in many different ways.” By hearing so many different opinions our purpose and resolution is ruptured. Therefore while hearing all these different teachers (by observing all these ordinary objects) one should use one's discriminating intelligence and due reflection to nourish and strengthen the opinion of the great teacher (one's own Guru) and to refute opposing views. Consulting so many teachers should not serve to establish opposing views like those of Kapila and others.”

Śikṣā-Gurus with their direct and indirect teachings can surely serve to point out what factors are favorable and unfavorable for my worship, though. ## The Guru in the Bhagavad-Gītā:

The only Guru-verse in Bhagavad Gītā (tad viddhi praṇipātena paripraśnena sevayā, 4.34) seems to indicate that the Guru here is plural (the words upadekṣanti, jñānina and tattva darśina are all in plural case). However, the commentators all agree that here too the worshipable Guru is in the singular. Śrī Madhusūdana Sarasvatī comments:

bahu-vacanaṁ cedam ācārya-viṣayam ekasminn api gauravātiśayārthaṁ na tu bahutva-vivakṣayā. ekasmād eva tattva-sākṣātkāravata ācāryāt tattva-jñānodaye satyācāryāntara-gamanasya tad-artham ayogād iti draṣṭavyam

„The ācārya is mentioned here in plural case but still he is one. The plural case was only used here in an honorary way. It does not mean that one should have many Gurus. Divine knowledge is arising from a single Guru who has seen the truth. It is to be seen here that it is unfit to go to other Gurus for this purpose.”

Śrī Viśvanātha Cakravartī comments:

praṇipātena jñānopadeṣṭari gurau daṇḍavan-namaskāreṇa. bhagavan! kuto'yaṁ me saṁsāraḥ? kathaṁ nivartīsyate? iti paripraśnena ca. sevayā tat-paricaryayā ca. tad vijñānārthaṁ sa gurum evābhigacchet samit-pāṇiḥ śrotriyaṁ brahma-niṣṭham iti śruteḥ „Praṇipātena means offering prostrated obeisances to the knowledge-instructing Guru. The paripraśna (inquiry) is: „Bhagavan (Gurudeva)! Why am I am in the material world? How can I stop material life?” sevayā means serving him or her.” Then he quotes the Upaniṣad-verse sa gurum evābhigacchet „To know this, one should approach a Guru who is learned and realized”. All of this is in singular case.

Śrīdhara Swāmī comments on the last verse of Bhagavad Gītā (18.78):

sva-prāgalbhya-balād vilobhya bhagavad-gītām tad-antar-gatam tattvaṃ prepsur upaiti kiṃ guru-kṛpā-pīyūṣa-dṛṣṭiṃ vinā ambu svāñjalīnā nirasya jaladher āditsur antarmaṇī nāvarteṣu na kiṃ nimajjati janaḥ sat-karṇa-dhāraṃ vinā

“Does a person who desires to attain the Truths contained within the Bhagavad-Gītā by trying to understand them on the strength of his own proficiency, realize them without the merciful nectar-gance of the Guru? Is a person who desires to get the jewels that lie at the bottom of the ocean by scooping out the water with the hollow of his hands, not doomed to failure unless he is helped by an able captain?”

The Guru in the Upaniṣads :

ācāryavān puruṣo veda

(Chāndogya Upaniṣad)

"Transcendental principles are understood by he who has taken shelter of Śrī Guru's lotus feet and who is surrendered to his service."

*yasya deve parābhaktir yathā deve tathā gurau;
tasyaite kathitā hyarthāḥ prakāśante mahātmanāḥ*

(Śvetāśvatara Upaniṣad 6.23)

"To those great souls who recite the Vedas with equal devotion to Guru and God, the purport of all this (Vedic) knowledge will be revealed".

uttiṣṭhata jāgrata prāpya varān nibodhata kṣurasya dhārā niṣitā duratyaya durgam pathas tat kavayo vadanti

(Kaṭha Upaniṣad 1.3.14)

“Get up! Wake up! Seek the guidance of an illumined teacher and realize the Self. Sharp like a razor's edge, the sages say, is the path, difficult to traverse.”

The Guru in the Gosvāmīs' books :

In Śrī Bhakti Rasāmṛta Sindhu (1.2.74) Śrīla Rūpa Gosvāmī has described 64 limbs of bhakti, starting with taking shelter of the lotus feet of a Guru, accepting an initiation-mantra from him, learning the intricacies of bhajana from him and serving him with love and faith. He mentioned three gates through which we enter the temple of devotion:

guru padāśrayas tasmāt kṛṣṇa dīkṣādi śikṣānaṃ viśrambheṇa guroḥ sevā.

Bṛhad Bhāgavatāmṛta, 2.3.5-6 :

“Having bathed, Śrī Guru instructed me in the rules of how to practise my mantra and how to meditate on it. Some instructions he gave me verbally and some through gestures. He said: ‘I have given you, my dear one, everything. Whatever other secrets there are you will learn it spontaneously, by the power of this mantra.»

The importance of the Guru confirmed in the scriptures.

Śrīla Sanātana Gosvāmī's commentary :

nanu saṅketopadeśena tatra ca kṣaṇikena katham tat tad aśeṣa-vidhi-jñānam sidhyet. satyam tasyaivānugrahād ityāha - jagādeti. sarvam uddiṣṭam anuddiṣṭam api sādhanam sādhyam ca. etasya mad dattasya sāṅga mantrasya prabhāveṇa svayam eva jñāsyasi prāpsyāpi ca ātmasāt kariṣyasi.

"If you say, 'how can the Guru, with just some gestures and instructions, within a moment, accomplish (the śiṣya's) endless knowledge of divine truths? (Then to that the response is:) Truly, it all happens by his grace alone - (attainment and realization of) all the sādhana and sādhyā (means and goals) that are described and not described. (The Guru says:) "By the power of the mantra I gave and its ritual applications (sāṅga) you will know everything spontaneously, and after you received it you will make it your own (realize it) too."

Brhad Bhāgavatāmṛtam (2.4.3-4)

*bhaktim nava-vidhām samyag jñātvedam vanam āgataḥ

Gopa-kumāra said: "Having learned the nine types of devotion I came to this forest Vṛndāvana where I suddenly saw my own Śrī Guru. He shone just like before. Seeing me offering my obeisances to him he was very glad, blessed me and embraced me. Then that omniscient one was most kind (to instruct me in the secrets of bhakti)."

Note: The word 'nijam', 'my own', shows that Śrī Guru did not appear in the form of some other person replacing him/her – it was the very same person.

Sanātana Gosvāmī comments on verse 4:

asau guru-varaḥ pūrvavad rājamāna iti nirvikāritvādi bhagavad avatāra-lakṣaṇam māthura vrajabhūmi rasikatvam ca darśitam.

The importance of the Guru confirmed in the scriptures.

“(Though Gopakumāra had been to the heavens and a long time had passed, meaning thousands of years), Śrī Guru was unchanged, which shows that he/she is an avatāra of the Lord and a rasika of Mathurā and Vrajabhūmi as well.”

This confirms the eternity of the Guru as a distinct individual (not just a tattva), as glorified in Narottama dāsa Ṭhākura's song: 'janme janme prabhu se' ('He is my master, birth after birth').

The rest of Sanātana Gosvāmī's commentary is interesting and important, too –

akṛpayattarām atyantam kṛpām kṛtavān akhilaṁ parama rahasyam bhakti-tattvam anubhava paryantam upādiśad ityarthah yataḥ sarvajñah

“He was very compassionate, so he instructed me in all the greatest secrets of bhakti, including the realizations about it. (This was possible because) it came from the omniscient.”

Bṛhad Bhāgavatāmṛtam (2.4.81-87) :

The Lord said: "O my son! Welcome, welcome! I have been eager to see you for so many days! O friend! You have gone through many births, but still you did not show even the slightest interest in Me. In this birth you have turned towards Me, and hoping for this I have been constantly dancing like an ignorant person. O brother! I could not find any trick by which I could bring you here, violating the injunctions of the Vedas and so. O child! I was very upset that you ignored Me for so long. Being so eager for your mercy I violated the beginningless religious principles that were made by Myself and made you take birth near My own beloved Śrī Govardhana, while I descended there as your Guru, named Jayanta. Today you have fulfilled My long-standing desires! Just stay here and increase My happiness and yours!"

Of this there is no doubt.", still someone who desires a special perfection in worship will always particularly serve and worship the lotus feet of his Guru, either the Guru who teaches him the holy scriptures about the Supreme Lord, or the Guru who initiates him in the sacred mantras of the Supreme Lord. The mercy of the topmost devotee is the root cause of destruction of those bad habits that the practitioner could hardly give up through many of his own endeavours."
